ARTSY SMARTSY

There's a new art gallery in town. Mercury Art Works, to be exact, which recently opened in a 2,815-sq. ft. space in the new Jamestown's 999 Peachtree development in Midtown. The fine art gallery, which originally opened in Athens, Ga., in 2001 (it still has a home there, in the Indigo Hotel), carries a diverse collection of artwork including painting, photography, prints and sculpture. Currently on view is "School of Athens," which highlights work from four leading artists—Jim Herbert, Jack Kehoe, Richard Olsen and Art Rosenbaum—for the University of Georgia's Lamar Dodd School of Art, as well as a selection of artists who studied with them or have followed in their traditions. 999 Peachtree St. NE, www.mercuryartworks.com.
